COUNTY FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

The season of the year is fast approaching when the agriculturist will have time to stop and take breath. For the past three or four months it has been a constant rush and there has been no time for wind work, it has all been "Pitch in." With the longer nights and shorter days will come some more leisure, more time for reading, and more time for brain work.

In each of the cities of our county we have farmers' institutes and much good has already resulted from these organizations. The institute idea can be still further utilized by the organization of a County Farmers' Institute. The need of interchange of ideas among our agriculturists is becoming more apparent as the years go by. At our late conference ideas along this line were dropped by more than one of the speakers, and there is nothing in a small way that will do more to promote this than a County Farmers' Institute. Let the institutes take immediate steps to bring about this desirable move by calling their members together and formulating some plans of proceeding so as to commence this move at the beginning of the season. A meeting of the County Institute could be held once a month during the winter months, alternating between Cedar and Parowan, and inasmuch as there is a State Agricultural Institute in the county, it is reasonable to suppose that some of the professors from the Agricultural College can be induced to fulfill the requirements of the law, at least in part by being in attendance.

The investigation that is being made in the land office in Salt Lake City with regard to fraudulent or unlawful means that have been taken by certain parties to get possession of government lands, is what ought to be done in many cases other than the ones under consideration.

The fact is notorious that corporations and moneyed men are in the habit of hiring people to enter and reside upon public land, and turn the same over to these land grabbers as soon as the patent is secured. The results is that the public lands are passing into the hands of a few monopolists, and what the government intended for homes for the people is being taken by these sharks. What is needed is a law that would punish such schemers by imprisonment, and a corps of honest officials to enforce it. Statistics show that our country is fast approaching the condition that exists in Europe, where landlordism is the curse of the people. In this arid region the scarcity of water has to a certain extent curtailed the operations of the land fiend, but even this will be found insufficient as the country fills up. Every good citizen ought to lend his influence to prevent the people from being defrauded of their rights in this manner.

We are in receipt of an account of "The Flood" written by a student which, in view of the watery weather we are having just at present, and the crowded condition of our columns we have reserved for the next issue. We also have a communication from an unwilling taxpayer that will be appreciated by a number of our readers, which want of space causes us to lay over till next time.

light of truth through the friendly and timely help extended to him.
In conclusion Elder Roberts urged the bishops and visiting brethren and sisters to carry home the spirit of the conference and seek to carry out the instructions that had been given.

President U. T. Jones,

Referring to the question asked by Elder Roberts as to whether the people had made satisfactory progress in the past 50 years, said that a better class of people lived here at that time than now and that the results of the labors of the past 50 years were not satisfactory. Was not satisfied with the material outlook; the sheep industry is keeping our county alive, and if it were not for the mines of Utah the state would be in a very poor condition. Only one woolen factory is in operation in the state, and that is indebted in a considerable degree to outside patronage for its success. Bishops should pay more attention to the material interests of people and seek to advise them on temporal matters. Farmers and stockmen should take time to visit other settlements, counties and states if possible and learn the best methods that are in vogue in their lines. Believe that this would broaden their views and greatly benefit their interests and tend to destroy the petty jealousies that too often exist among communities that are more or less isolated. The principle of love seems to be dying out of the family circle, parents depend too much upon the public institutions of learning for the training of their children. Advised compliance with the suggestion of Elder Roberts of reading a portion of scripture before attending to family prayers to assist in the training of our children and keeping alive in their hearts a love for the scriptures, for their parents and for each other.

Counselor John J. G. Webster

Enquired if we are to understand in the light of the question suggested by Elder Roberts, that we are retrograding? Suggested that if the older ones among us were to be more exemplary the young ones would lead a better life.

Principal Woodbury and the entire Corps of District School teachers leave to day to attend the State Teachers association in Salt Lake City.

Prest. U. T. Jones & wife, Bishop Lunt & son Prest. Henry Leigh and many others will visit the state Capital next week. We wish them all an enjoyable time.

Professor Anderson is very busy preparing the McDonald Drug store building for the reception of his family, which he expects to arrive about the middle of next week.

Professors Porter & Driggs of the Branch Normal leave to-day for the North to take in the State Fair and the Conference. They intend to bring their families back with them.

Supt. M. D. Higbee of the Cedar Sheep Association has gone—like everybody else of importance—to Salt Lake City. We are informed that it is his intention before returning to visit the state of Idaho.

Y. M. M. I. A. was organized for the winter last Monday night, with Geo. A. Wood as president and Edward J. Palmer and William T. Hunter counselors. After the organization was effected a conjoint meeting with the Y. L. M. I. A. was held.

The mail is late every day lately. The postmaster says it is due to the fact that it does not reach Lund until several hours after schedule time. The cause of this is doubtless owing to the great rush of materials that are being sent south for the building of the line to San Pedro.

Page and Bracken have added another drawing card to their already popular establishment in the person of a very nice young lady clerk, Miss Maggie Matheson of Parowan. While Mr. Page is away in the missionary field, Mr. Bracken has his business eye wide open, and he "Neyer loses a trick."

During this week Cedar Co-op has received six large loads of merchandise, and they have two more loads between here and Lund. Among the goods newly arrived are 40 Heaters and six Ranges. They have also enlarged their stock of mens readymade clothing by an importation from the markets of New York and Cincinnati, which adds materially to their assortment of styles and colors.

Fifteen inches deep of snow on Cedar mountain. Such is reported to be the result of the "falling weather" that has been precipitating itself upon us for the past week.

IN EARLY DAYS

When the red man was your only neighbor you did not advertise your business. One reason for this was that you did not have much of a business to advertise. But conditions have changed. We are becoming civilized and the wide-awake man finds that he cannot keep up with the profession unless he advertises. Competition is too keen. The Local Newspaper is recognized to be the best medium for advertising in the world.

Then again, people did not subscribe for the Local Paper because there was none published. They depended upon the street gossips for the news. Different again. THE RECORD gives all the news of Iron County. Can you afford to be without it.
